Plane 4 Lands At Wrangell On Return Flight

Encounters Fog Which Is Cleared by Plane 4 In Vicinity Taku Glacier —
Lands at Wrangell.

Plane No. 4 made a perfect take-off from the aviation field on Sergeif island at 1:45 this afternoon. The weather here was exceptionally good for flying. A message from Hazelton reports weather perfectly clear there.

Lieut. Kirkpatrick was good enough to fly low over Wrangell after taking off.

Wrangell was thrown into excitement Thursday evening at 6:30 by the buzzing of an airplane over the dock. The plane flew so low that it was recognized as plane 4. Early in the afternoon word had been received by cable that the planes had left Whitehorse for Glenora. Under these circumstances it was only natural that the presence of plane 4 flying over Wrangell should be the signal for general excitement. Everybody was asking questions that nobody could answer. While one person was asking if all four planes had come to Wrangell another would be inquiring if there had been an accident.

Sergeant W. W. McLaughlin lost no time in hiring a boat and proceeding to the landing field. Upon his arrival there he found Lieutenant Kirkpatrick and Sergeant Joseph E. English in waiting.

Lieutenant Kirkpatrick reported that all four planes took off from Whitehorse that afternoon, and encountered a heavy fog. Plane 4 cleared the fog in the vicinity of Taku glacier and came to Wrangell in preference to returning to Whitehorse.

Plane 4 expected to take off for Hazelton the next morning, but owing to unfavorable atmospheric conditions did not get away until this afternoon.

On Friday planes 1, 2 and 3 took off from Whitehorse. In landing at Glenora plane 3 broke the axle of its landing gear. Captain Street immediately chartered Captain Sid Barrington's Hazel B No. 4 and came to Wrangell for repair parts for plane 3. He arrived here Saturday night, having in his company Lieutenant C. C. Nutt of plane 2. They left for Glenora Sunday afternoon.

The aviators have eight malumute dogs with them on their return flight, which will doubtless attract considerable attention in the east.

The people of Wrangell were greatly pleased at having plane 4 here a second time after having given up all hope of seeing any more planes for awhile. Several citizens decided to present Lieutenant Kirkpatrick and Sergeant English with Alaskan souvenirs before they took off for Hazelton. A beautiful Chilkat blanket was purchased for Lieutenant Kirkpatrick, while for Sergeant English the gift selected was a rare totem carved out of jet black shale. The presents were delivered to the birdmen accompanied by the following notes:

Wrangell, Alaska,
September 10, 1920

Lieutenant Ross Kirkpatrick,
Plane No. 4
New York to Nome, Alaska
Aero Expedition

Sir:
On behalf of several citizens I present you with this Chilkat blanket, woven by Indian hands in the land of the Northern Lights. We wish you to accept this as a souvenir from Wrangell, the town where you made your first landing on Alaska soil.

We are proud of you, Lieutenant Kirkpatrick. Your dauntless courage and that of your gallant companions has made possible a glorious accomplishment which represents an epoch in our history, and the dawning of a new era in the progress and development of Alaska. It is therefore in a spirit of gratitude as well as in testimony of heroic accomplishment that this slight token is presented. We bid you Godspeed. You will ever have a warm place in our hearts.

Cordially and sincerely,
J. G. Grant, Mayor.

Wrangell, Alaska,
September 10, 1920

Sergeant Joseph E. English,
Plane No. 4
New York to Nome, Alaska
Aero Expedition

Sir:
On behalf of several citizens I present you with this totem, the handiwork of a primitive artisan who has long since been gathered to his fathers. We wish you to accept this totem as a souvenir from Wrangell, the town where you made your first landing on Alaskan soil.

We are proud of you, Sergeant English. No finer achievement is written in the annals of man's conquest of the forces of nature than this pioneer flight from the Atlantic ocean to the Bering sea. We bid you Godspeed. You will ever have a warm place in our hearts.

Cordially and sincerely,
J. G. Grant, Mayor.

The Sentinel has been fortunate in receiving mail from two different cities in opposite directions from Wrangell. The following letter from Nome was delivered in Wrangell on the return flight:

Nome, Alaska,
August 25, 1920.

Mr. J. W. Pritchett,
Editor Wrangell Sentinel,
Wrangell, Alaska.
GREETINGS: To you and the people of your vicinity from the Nome Nugget, Nome, Alaska, via Army Pioneer Air Expedition, to and through the land of the midnight sun, blazing the first air trail across the continent from the Bering sea to the Atlantic ocean.

NOME NUGGET
Per GEO. S. MAYNARD,
Publisher.

Mayor J. G. Grant of Wrangell is sending a letter to Mayor John Hyland of New York by air route which will be delivered by Lieutenant Kirkpatrick.

Plane 4 will also carry a letter from the publisher of the Sentinel to the publisher of the New York Times. Through the great courtesy of Lieutenant Kirkpatrick this letter will be delivered by him personally in New York. It reads as follows:

Wrangell, Alaska,
September 10, 1920.

Mr. Adolph S. Ochs,
Publisher New York Times,
New York City.

Dear Sir:
The letter which you were good enough to send me by Captain St. Clair Streett was delivered promptly upon the arrival here of the New York to Nome Aero Expedition.

You have made me your debtor, for I am very happy to have the distinction of having received the first letter ever brought from the States to Alaska by airplane.

The feasibility of an air route to Alaska having become an established fact it is now the hope of the long-suffering public of this northern dependency that a regular air mail service may soon be established between Alaska and the States. At present our mail comes by freight, and is not hurried along any more than any other cargo.

ern Alaska are well adapted to the needs of the paper industry. With her enormous forests of rapidly growing species suitable for pulp, her water power, her lime deposits, her tidewater shipment of manufactured products, Alaska should become one of the principal paper sources of the United States.

It is only during the last few months that the Bureau of Forestry has been making any real effort toward bringing about the development of this great resource. Recent Government estimates indicate that Alaska has pulp resources in excess of any section of the United States. It is estimated that the Tongass Forest reserve alone could easily furnish over a million tons of paper products yearly, and could continue to supply indefinitely one-third to one-half of the present paper requirements of the entire country.

The Wrangell sawmill is this week cutting lumber for Alaska's first paper mill, which is being built at Port Snettisham. The reason Alaska has not had paper mills sooner is because the Federal laws have been so unfavorable, both as to timber leases and water rights, that little encouragement could be offered for the investment of capital along that line. However, Congress has recently removed the main obstacles, and pulp industries for Alaska may now be installed with the assurance that they will be protected. Therefore, I am confident that the paper mill now being built will be followed by others. I expect at no distant date to read the New York Times and other leading papers of the country with a thrill of pride in knowing that the paper on which they are printed was manufactured in Southeastern Alaska.

Fraternally,
J. W. Pritchett.

Last Friday Forest Supervisor C. H. Flory of Ketchikan wired Capt. St. Clair Streett at Whitehorse requesting that if possible he fly up the Unuk river in an effort to locate 12 lost members of the international boundary survey crew who are over-due and whom it is feared have been wrecked in a 30-foot polling boat. Superintendent Flory thought that if the men are still alive the airplanes might be able to locate their camp. Captain Streett immediately wired Flory that he would grant his request. Captain Streett then wired orders to Lieutenant Kirkpatrick at Wrangell to make a flight up the Unuk river while en route from Wrangell to Hazelton. Flory stated in his message to Streett that he was starting a searching party up the river in a boat.

Friday afternoon the Ladies' Aid Society is giving a flower show and plant sale in the library room at the Presbyterian Church. Will also serve tea and cake from 2 to 5. Cordial invitation extended to all.

It is surprising how many matters arise in a small town that people consider worthy of being taken up with the Mayor. This week a citizen called Mayor Grant aside and said to him: "Johnnie, you seem to be pretty well acquainted with those aviators. Don't you think you would be doing a good thing for the town if you would have them take a load of Wrangell dogs back to New York."

Guy Cooper who was mentioned in a dispatch in our last issue as having had his leg broken in an airplane accident at Kalama, Wash., is a brother of Mrs. A. M. Myers of Wrangell.

Notice to Trappers

Mayor J. G. Grant has received from Alfred M. Bailey of the Bureau of Biological Survey, a number of copies of the "Regulations for the Protection of Land and Fur-Bearing Animals in Alaska." These copies are for free distribution, and any one desiring a copy may obtain one by application to Mayor Grant at the Wrangell hotel.

Mrs. Carl Arola was a passenger to Petersburg on the Jefferson Sunday.

Winfield Wood Taken to Hospital At Ketchikan

Winfield Wood, operator in charge of the radio station at Craig, was taken to the hospital at Ketchikan the first of the week on sub chaser 294. Mr. Wood is suffering from pleuro-pneumonia. Mrs. Wood accompanied her husband to Ketchikan on the sub chaser, and reports that he stood the trip well considering his serious condition. A. C. Vaughan of the Wrangell radio station left on the Princess Pat Friday to take charge of the Craig radio station until such time as Mr. Wood is able to resume the duties of his position.

Mail Boat From Ketchikan to West Coast Is Proposed

Roy Cole and W. J. Niell Solicit Cooperation of Ketchikan Commercial Club in Putting Proposition Through

(Ketchikan Chronicle)

Ketchikan will have a direct boat service with the west coast of Prince of Wales Island if plans which were put in motion by the Commercial Club last night carry through.

The Commercial Club met in special session at the council chambers last night for the purpose of discussing ways and means for the acceptance of a proposal which had been made by William Neall and Roy Cole, owners of the gas boat Prince of Wales.

A lengthy letter was read from Mr. Neall in which he stated that he and his partner desired to place their boat on the West Coast run, but that in order to do so at a profit they would have to install a semi-deisel engine, as the expense of operating the present power plant, an Eastern Standard gas engine, is too great.

The letter stated that between $12,000 and $15,000 would be required to install an engine of from 100 to 125 horsepower, and it was the desire of the boat owners that the business men of Ketchikan assist them in financing the purchase.

A first mortgage on the hull and engine was offered as security for a loan of the purchase price. The money would be returned from the earnings of the boat and would be paid back at as early a date as possible. No insurance is to be carried on the boat, as the cost was considered too great.

The proposal was discussed from all angles. All of the speakers agreed that Ketchikan requires a boat service to the West Coast, and also that the boat offered is suitable for the purpose.

Ways and means were then discussed for the raising of the necessary capital. A list had been prepared ahead of time of quotas which it was believed each business house in town would be in a position to handle.

After a general discussion, the club decided to appoint three trustees to take care of the raising of the necessary capital. The trustees appointed are: H. C. Strong, W. A. Bryant and A. R. Larson. Before the meeting adjourned last night, merchants and business firms had agreed to subscribe more than half of the amount required.

The week of September 18 to 25 has been set aside as Wrangell's campaign week for the Salvation Army Home Service Fund.

Of Local Interest

Hon. and Mrs. P. C. McCormack returned on the Spokane Tuesday from an extended visit in the States.

John McCollum of Calder took passage to Juneau on the Spokane which was in port Tuesday morning.

Mrs. H. Vick who has been visiting the family of I. C. Bjorge, departed on the Spokane Tuesday for her home in Petersburg. Mrs. Vick is a sister of Mr. Bjorge.

Adjutant W. J. Carruthers returned Sunday on the Jefferson from a trip to the West Coast and Ketchikan.

Grover Winn, an attorney of Juneau, visited Wrangell on professional business the first of the week.

W. D. Grant took passage to Juneau on the Jefferson Sunday.

Jess Platter took passage to Seattle on the City of Seattle which was in port Sunday.

J. G. Galvin, president of the Bon Alaska Mining company, sailed south on the City of Seattle Sunday night. He was en route to New York on a business trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Craig Millar were southbound passengers on the City of Seattle which was in port Sunday night.

Miss Maie Armstrong, who had been spending a few days with friends in Wrangell, left on the Jefferson Sunday for Petersburg from which port she will go to Kake where she will teach during the coming school term.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Shields of Seattle arrived on the Jefferson Sunday to visit their son, Lin Shields, who is a salesman in the mercantile establishment of Donald Sinclair.

Hon. J. R. Heckman and August Buschmann were aboard the Jefferson Sunday. They were en route to Juneau to attend the public hearing which was held in Juneau Tuesday relative to proposed change in regulations governing fish traps in Alaska.

Mrs. Isabel B. Watson has rented the residence of Miss Woods. Mrs. Watson comes from Snohomish, Wash., to make Wrangell her home. Before coming north she purchased from the McKinnon estate the building now occupied by the Wrangell restaurant. It is understood that Mrs. Watson will later engage in business in Wrangell.

The publisher of the Sentinel this week received a letter from an acquaintance in Seattle. The closing paragraph of the letter was as follows:

"Rents in Seattle are just about as high as they were a year ago, with strictly modern houses if anything, higher. As a sample, unfurnished five and six room modern cottages with garage are grabbed up at $65 and $75 per month."

There will be a special meeting of the Red Cross at the town hall Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock for the purpose of determining whether the chapter shall have an enrolled Red Cross nurse come to Wrangell and give a course in Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick.

J. H. Sisson Dies Suddenly In City San Francisco

Was President North Pacific Trading and Packing Co. Operating Oldest Cannery in Alaska.

The news of the sudden death of J. H. Sisson at San Francisco came as a shock to the people of Southeastern Alaska. Mr. Sisson visited Klawock during the summer and was then in good health. The particulars of his passing are not known. On Sunday, September 5, Earl Sisson received a cablegram stating that his father had died suddenly. The day before the message was received he had a letter from his mother in which she stated that the family were all well. Owing to the death having occurred on Sunday the young man suspected that his father had been killed in an automobile accident. Earl Sisson left Klawock at once for Ketchikan on the J. H. Sisson, going around Cape Chacon. At Ketchikan he took passage south on a steamer. J. H. Sisson was president of the North Pacific Trading and Packing company of Klawock which operates the oldest cannery in Alaska. It was established December 12, 1877.

Col. Edward H. Schulz of the War Department, who is colonel of the corps of engineers, United States Engineers' Office, Seattle, Washington, was aboard the Jefferson Sunday en route to Juneau to attend the hearing which took place in that city Tuesday relative to the proposed change in regulations governing fish traps in Alaska. While the vessel was in port Mayor Grant accompanied Colonel Schulz to the site of the proposed breakwater at the mouth of Etolin harbor. It is fortunate for Wrangell that Colonel Schulz could look over the location personally as the need for a breakwater is so apparent that there is little doubt but that he will recommend its construction.

The first Parent-Teachers' association meeting for the fall term was held in the Redmen's lodge rooms on Thursday evening. There was a brief business session after which the evening was given over to a social time in honor of the teachers.

There was a short program consisting of remarks by Mr. Corser, director of the school board, songs by Miss Lillian Kelley and Miss Anabel Froese, Mesdames McLaughlin and Towers. Mrs. Towers also rendered several instrumental selections by request.

Following the program refreshments were served.

George F. Forest of Juneau made a round trip up the Stikine to Telegraph Creek last week. He was present at the landing of the airplanes at Glenora. Mr. Forest is very enthusiastic over the amazing scenery along the Stikine and says that Wrangell and the transportation companies are sleeping on their rights by not having the Stikine nationally advertised as a side trip.

Fifteen water power projects in Alaska were developing a total of 37,350 horse power in 1917, for the region of Southeastern Alaska. These plants furnish power for mining and various other industries. The largest plant in Southeastern Alaska develops 5700 horse power.

For a time it looked as if there would be a famine of newspaper in the West when the Wrangell Sentinel sold more than 100 extra copies of the paper containing an account of the landing of the airplanes.—Douglas Island News.

Leslie's Magazine (New York) of August 28 has an article profusely illustrated with Alaskan views, headed, "Alaska, the Land of the Closed Door: Its Natural Riches Locked up by a Dog-in-the-Manger Policy." The article and the six illustrations were furnished by the Seattle Chamber of Commerce.

Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the explorer, declares that it is deplorable and ridiculous to see what is taught the children about the great Northland. "It amounts to almost defamatory propaganda." There are 640 species of flowering plants within the Arctic circle, according to the explorer. And there are two seasons, similar to those of the settled conditions of Canada. In the winter nothing grows, but in the summer time one can find golden rod, poppies, bluebells, dandelions, timothy, and watercress, and these grow as far north as land has been discovered.

The Alaskan National Forests not only contain approximately 100,000,000 cords of pulpwood timber but also the second chief essential of a paper-manufacturing industry—enormous water power possibilities.

Plants Have Eyes.

Most people are aware that potatoes have eyes, but how many know that certain common garden and wild flowers are similarly equipped? The nasturtium, begonia, clover, wood sorrel and bluebell, among others, have eyes placed on their leaves, says London Tit-Bits. They are tiny protuberances, filled with a transparent, gummy mixture, which focuses the rays of light upon a sensitive patch of tissue behind them. A nasturtium plant has thousands of such "eyes" on its leaves, but it is not yet known if the plant can actually see. Are the sense impressions telegraphed to some central nerve corresponding with the brain of the animal kingdom? In addition to this visual organ many plants show a sensitiveness to touch that points to further resemblance to animals; while certain seaweeds and mosses in an early stage of their existence are able actually to swim through the water.

Beautiful Common Sense.

Neglected common sense in men and in nations—what high evils it has brought about! What immense outlay, cost of life and treasure, might be saved if common sense were allowed its function. But common sense must not be a cold, calculating faculty; it may be something more divine than simple caution and wariness. Its work should lie in directing to the highest good, not the mere avoidance of trouble or loss. Common sense will look further than today; it will see tomorrow. It will see slow results and not look for immediate returns. It will lead us away from the petty and the selfish, because it knows that these must bring disaster in the end. It may give us fires and light for the dark hours, but it will look for the sunrise.—Chicago News.

Correct English.

Common use or misuse of certain words or expressions does not necessarily make them correct English; the present, national and reputable use of them, as exemplified by the majority of the best writers and speakers, forms the standard by which language must be judged. Though our language is continually growing and slang words of yesterday in many cases are correct English today, many slang words and expressions never attain respectability at all; thus Prof. R. P. Utter speaks of the word "booze" having remained slang since before Shakespeare's time. It may also be added that grammatical misuse of words is unjustifiable by any authority, however great; Shakespeare's frequent employment of the double negative does not make "I haven't done nothing" good English.

Old English Institution.

A venerable institution of London's legal quarter—the Moot—has been reinstated at the Inns of Court. The Moot belongs to quite another age, but it is still useful as providing a means of testing the abilities of candidates to the bar. Even should it have been suffered to disappear definitely from the Inns of Court institutions the Moot would have left a reminder in the language of its former presence, says the Christian Science Monitor. The expression "a moot point" springs from the practice of holding discussions for the solution of points which no amount of discussion can settle; the very raison d'être of the Moot.

When Tobacco Was Currency.

For many years tobacco was currency in the colony, and with the Virginians of the day the "tobacco note" served the purpose which the gold or silver certificate serves with us, and was honored in all the local shops. Taxes and parish levies, fines, and gambling debts, wedding fees, and funeral expenses were paid in tobacco. Salaries of ministers of the Established Church were paid regularly with the weed, and parishes were rated and known according to the quality of tobacco produced in them—an "Orinoko" parish being considered less desirable than a "sweet scented."

Let Monkey Do the Work.

Garner, the naturalist, who has spent many years learning the monkey language, believes they could be developed into a race of workers useful on the farm and in the mill. "Sam, a boy ape, that shared my home in Africa," he said, "learned to fetch things I called for. If a man can train a dog to herd sheep, why couldn't he train an ape to help with farm and mill work? Maybe he could, but if the ape had to be fed on fresh coconuts and had an attack of pneumonia with every rainstorm his keep might cost more than his worth.

"Collective Bargaining."

"Collective bargaining" is a term used to describe the meeting of employers or their representatives with employees or their representatives for the purpose of reaching an agreement as to wages and working conditions in an industry, as opposed to a condition where single workers act alone and take or refuse terms offered by an employer which the worker has no part in making and which he may regard as very unfair.

X-Raying Diamond Thieves.

The superintendent of a South African diamond mine is using the X-ray to locate stones secreted on or in the persons of the native workmen. As each man passes before the powerful machine the examiner looks through his fluoroscope, swinging it rapidly up and down, taking in the entire body in a few seconds.

Luminous Paint.

Luminous or phosphorescent paint for clock dials and other surfaces: Heat strontium thiosulphate for 15 minutes over a good Bunsen gas lamp, and then for five minutes over a blast lamp. Or, heat equal parts of strontium carbonate and lac sulphuric gently for five minutes, then strongly for 25 minutes over a Bunsen lamp; then, finally, over a blast lamp five minutes. Or, precipitate strong aqueous solution of strontium chloride by means of sulphuric acid; dry the precipitate, and heat it to redness for some time in a current of hydrogen; then over a Bunsen lamp for ten minutes, and for 20 minutes over a blast lamp. Mix any of these with pure melted paraffin for use as a paint, and expose for a time to sunlight. The two former yield a greenish phosphorescence in the dark, the latter a bluish light.

Odd South African Plant.

A remarkable family of plants are the mesembryanthemums, which are confined chiefly to the dry districts of South Africa. Other curious fleshy-leaved South African plants are the stapelias, which cater for the likes of certain carrion-loving flies, by the simple process of having brown and purple leathery flowers with an unpleasant odor. Some of the most remarkable denizens of the plant world are found in the extensive cactus family. An interesting feature of these plants is found in the wonderful flowers which many of them develop. In some cases these are of immense size and of most brilliant colors. These flowers only bloom for a very short time, and some kinds only open at night.

Self-Discipline.

Marion Crawford had a violent temper as a boy and he decided to get it in hand. One member of his family constantly irritated him to the verge of frenzy, and he invented a form of self-discipline which very few children would have thought of imposing on themselves. His mother entered his room one day and found him walking around it, carrying on his back a heavy wooden shutter which he had lifted off its hinges at the window. "My dear child!" she exclaimed, "what are you doing?" "Getting over a rage," he replied, doggedly, continuing the exercise. "When I am so mad that I want to kill somebody I come in here and carry the shutter three times around the room before I answer her. It is the only way."—Ladies' Home Journal.

The Ovenbird.

Do you know how the ovenbird got its name? Well, it was because its nest built among the leaves or pine needles on the ground is arched, and of an oven-like appearance, says the American Forestry association, Washington, which is encouraging bird conservation through bird-house building contests among school children and is conducting a national campaign. You do not see the ovenbird sitting on the topmost twig of a tree like some other members of the feathery tribe, but he sticks close to the ground, mounting to the lower branches of a tree only to sing or to scold an intruder. The song of the ovenbird somewhat resembles the word "teacher."

Odor and Sex Attraction.

Odor seems to be the sex attraction of many animals, and even certain butterflies and moths are found to have scent glands that are more sensitive than human nostrils. Describing in the Naturalist the odors of some English species, J. W. Taylor notes a curious resemblance to the fragrance of common flowers. For example, males of the large garden white butterfly (Pieris brassicae) diffuse a faint but delicious scent of lemon; those of the small Pieris rapae have an aroma of thyme; and those of the green-veined white Pieris napi emit a delicate perfume like that of the lemon verbena. Sweetbrier and honeysuckle are among various other perfumes recognized.

The State.

That which is substantial and true in man's will is what we call morality and law; and this is what is divine in the external objects of history. Antigone in Sophocles says: "The divine commands are not of yesterday or today; no, they live without end, and no one knows whence and when they came." Moral laws are not accident, but are reason itself. When these moral laws or ethical principles, which compose the true substance of humanity, have authority in the actions and sentiments of men, when they are really carried out and maintained, then we have the state.—W. F. Hergul.

Simple Courtship.

When a New Guinea woman falls in love with a man she sends a piece of string to his sister, or, if he has no sister, to his mother or another of his lady relatives. Then the lady who receives the string tells the favored man that the particular woman is in love with him. No courting follows, however, for it is considered beneath a New Guinea man's dignity to waste time in such a pursuit. If the man thinks he would like to wed the lady, he meets her alone, and they decide whether to marry or drop the idea.

Real Article Not Recognized.

A theatrical manager was watching his stage manager drill some "supers" who were to represent an army. "Not a bit like it!" he exclaimed. "Why don't you try to look like real soldiers?" The stage manager went up to him and whispered in his ear. "They are real soldiers straight from the barracks!" he said.

God Gave You Health. Thank Him For It. Go to Church.

OME people never think of God until a loved one is ill or a great trouble besets them. Then they seek the SOLACE OF RELIGION. A clergyman is called in, and prayers are said at the bedside for the loved one's recovery. God is MERCIFUL, and oftentimes these prayers are answered, and the loved one recovers.

IT IS NOT FAIR TO GOD, HOWEVER, TO ASK HIM TO REMEMBER YOU WHEN YOU HAVE FORGOTTEN HIM. WHEN EVERYTHING IS GOING ALONG SMOOTHLY AND THE WORLD LOOKS BRIGHT SOME MEN FORGET THERE IS A GOD. THEY NEVER GO TO CHURCH. WHILE THEY WILL RESENT THE CHARGE THAT THEY WOULD OPENLY OFFEND GOD, THEY OFFEND HIM DEEPLY BY NOT GOING TO CHURCH. THE SUCCESSFUL MAN SHOULD GO TO CHURCH TO THANK GOD FOR HIS WORLDLY GIFTS. THE SUPREME BEING GAVE HIM ALL HE HAS—LIFE, HEALTH, HAPPINESS—AND HE SHOULD THANK HIM FOR THEM.

Thanks to the GO TO CHURCH movement, there has been a religious awakening over the land. RELIGION NEVER WAS DEAD. All that it required was a stimulus, and that stimulus was provided by the GO TO CHURCH campaign. It should not be necessary to urge men to GO TO CHURCH. There isn't an argument that can be advanced by any man who believes in God in favor of staying away from church. Take away the churches and you will have a condition bordering on anarchy.

The man who GOES TO CHURCH is prepared to MEET ANY CRISIS, moral, physical or financial. His faith in a Supreme Being sustains him in the most severe trials.

Communication

Wrangell, Alaska,
 Box 73,
 September 7, 1920.

Dear Mr. Editor:

May I have the privilege of a small portion of your valuable space to express a few thoughts that occurred to me as I overheard a conversation recently in your town.

A group of men were talking about the RIGHTS of the working man. The attitude of mind they held toward the question aroused in my mind this question, just what are RIGHTS. Should not we use the word in relation to the amount of labor performed. The RIGHTS of the working man depend entirely upon the kind and amount of service performed.

There are two elements of character, which when possessed by the working man and made the leading factor in his working hours, will forever eliminate the necessity of demanding RIGHTS. These elements referred to are, first, PRINCIPLE which is that element of character which acknowledges an obligation and performs it in the absence of compulsion.

The second element necessary to the success and contentment of the worker is LOVE. For love is the inspiration of all effort and when it is unselfish, the result is always for good to the masses and of great personal benefit. It makes for HAPPINESS, that condition in life which all seek and few obtain. Unhappy is the human whose sole aim in life is to obtain the gratification of his private and personal desires, regardless of how he injures, hurts or deceives another. Although he is probably unaware of the fact, by so doing he is setting in motion, forces that will later contribute to his further unhappiness and place farther and farther from his reach, the material things he so earnestly desires to obtain. He is something akin to the trolley which has slipped from the wire. Until it is again connected with the source of power, it is useless, helpless and valueless.

The human heart in order to be happy, successful and efficient, must be connected with the source of power that "makes the world go round." That power is God, expressed in LOVE. Love of work. Love of justice. Love of right. The desire to always give a square deal. Love for nature, especially here in Alaska where the majesty and awe inspiring beauties of nature are expressed in most wonderful form. Sympathy for the unfortunate and the wish to live so that your neighbor will be the better for having known you. If the human beings living and working on this earth will live every day with these elements of character as guides they will never have to fight for their RIGHTS.

Entered as second-class matter at the Wrangell, Alaska, postoffice, under Act of Congress of March 3, 1878.

While in conversation with Hon. J. R. Heckman Sunday that successful business man told us that he is now paying exactly three times as much per inch for advertising in Ketchikan as he was two years ago. He said that in view of the present high price of paper and increased operating expense it would not be possible to successfully publish an eight page paper in Ketchikan unless high rates were charged.

As a concrete example of what the newspapers are up against in the way of operating expense we will state that it cost the large dailies outside one hundred dollars cold cash to type and print the speech of acceptance of the democratic candidate for president.

One of the best newspapers that comes to our exchange table is the Valdez Miner. Hal B. Selby, the editor and publisher, is an able writer and an excellent printer. Yet Brother Selby, notwithstanding his versatility and the liberal support of the business men of his city, acknowledges through his columns that there is uncertainty as to the continued existence of his paper unless something is done to relieve the paper crisis.

Some users of printing save pennies by getting inferior work and lose dollars through lack of advertising value in the work they get. Printers as a rule charge very reasonable prices, for none of them get rich although nearly all of them work hard.

Forty-five Young Men Leave for San Antonio

Spend the Summer at the A. P. A. Cannery and Upon Leaving Engage Space in the Sentinel to Express Their Appreciation for the Kindness They Received at the Hands of a Wrangell Citizen.

Editor Wrangell Sentinel:

We desire space in your valuable paper and are willing to pay for same for the purpose of expressing ourselves on one or two matters before leaving this north-land.

In the month of May our party which is composed of 45 young men of Mexican descent, arrived here from our beloved home in San Antonio, Texas, to spend the season working for the Alaska Packers' association.

We came to Alaska as a little adventure because we wanted to see what the far north was like. Unfortunately, the change of climate did not agree with us at first, as several of our number were quite sick following our arrival here. But owing to the skillful treatment of the company doctor, Dr. S. C. Shurick, we soon recovered and were again enjoying our usual good health. Dr. Shurick was so attentive and tender and kind to us when we were so far away from our parents and relatives that the dictates of our hearts would not permit us to take leave of this country without first executing a public acknowledgement of our profound gratitude to our benefactor. On account of his skill and benignity he merits and no doubt will achieve distinction in the exercise of his noble profession. We ardently desire for this notable citizen of this northern port a long life of health and happiness.

We are leaving this week for San Francisco. After passing through the Golden Gate we will go straight to San Antonio. We have enjoyed this trip very much. It has been somewhat in the nature of a vacation. The wonderful scenery here especially claims our attention. This northland differs vastly from the plains and fields of Texas. Therefore, we will have much to tell when we get back home. If we are able to arrange our affairs as we wish, we are coming back again next year. And if we do come, we will come prepared with a good baseball team and a good bunch of sports so that we may be well greeted, and make next year's sojourn even happier than this one has been.

We hope this little town will grow fast, for it has for its advantages a very picturesque site, and is an ideal place for tourists and all kinds of hunting and fishing sports.

When we get back to the Lone Star State we will have a good crop of corn, cane, and cotton waiting for us, and though we are a bit too late, we expect to profit to some extent by them.

Texas has lately been developing its oil industry on a gigantic scale, and as there is a labor shortage there we will find many city jobs open. Therefore, it will not be long before we are sitting by our family's side recounting our interesting experiences in Alaska, the wonderland of the Golden North.

LOUIS CISNEROS,
 For the Party.
